

"THE CHRONICLE & DIRECTORY" FOR 1874.

FOR 1874.

NOW READY.

THIS Work, now in the TWELFTH year of its existence, is ready for delivery.

It has been compiled and printed at the Daily Press Office, as usual, from the best and most authentic sources, and no pains have been spared to make the work complete in all respects.

In addition to the usual varied and voluminous information, the value of the "CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY FOR 1874" has been further augmented by a

CHROMO-LITHOGRAPH

OF A

PLAN OF THE CITY OF CANTON,

THE FOREIGN SETTLEMENTS OF SHANGHAI,

A Chromo-Lithograph Plate of the

NEW CODE OF SIGNALS IN USE

AT THE PEAK;

also of

THE VARIOUS HOUSE FLAGS

(Designed expressly for this Work)

MAPS OF HONGKONG, JAPAN,

and of the

THE COAST OF CHINA;

also, THE

NEW CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

HONGKONG;

besides other local information and statistics corrected to date of publication,

leading to make this work in every way valuable for Public, Mercantile, and General Offices.

The Directory is published in Two Parts, Complete at $5; or with the Lists of Residents, Port Directories, Maps, &c., at $8.

Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily

THE MASONIC BALL.

(Daily Press, Dec. 3rd.)

On Thursday evening, the Freemasons gave a ball at the City Hall, under the auspices of the District Grand Lodge, and the entertainment went off with great spirit from beginning to end. The Hall was crowded with guests, and the entertainment was of a most interesting and very pleasant character. Outside the hall, were festoons of Chinese lanterns, and the lamps being of the most beautiful design, and the lighting was of a most

THE ANOEL OF PAIN.

Angel of Pain, I thank thee,
Will be, in all the heavenly place,
The sweetest face that I shall see,
And sweetest face to smile on me.
All other angels faint and flee,
For sorrow, and for sorrow's sake,
Hope fades, face to face with Fate,
And Fate becomes it cannot wait.
And I love thee short and loving day,
Because thou hast not come to stay,
But wilt be with me when I die,
For what it is to me to die.
But thou, O loving, faithful Pain—
Hated, reproached, rejected, slain—
Dost only cheer me when I die,
In sweeter, stronger, sweeter pain.
Dost, patient, urged, to thine own
Thou dost not come to stay,
But wilt be with me when I die,
For what it is to me to die.
The light of thy transcendent face Shedst on me, and, angelic, they Know they have walked with Christ all day.

FRENCH ROYALTY.

When, in 1793, the French Louis XVI., the sovereign of Europe, maintained the principles of legitimacy, and did not recognise the right of the French people to dethrone their King. For twelve years they struggled to defend the cause of the Bourbons, which was in fact, their own cause; and when at last vanquished by the force of arms and the resistance of the French people, they were compelled (England expected) to recognise the new dynasty of Napoleon I., they understood that this recognition, coming after so many extraordinary events, could not be considered the abandonment of a principle, but the sanction given to one of those great historical facts which appear at intervals of many centuries from the "Divine Works of Napoleon III. in Asia."

SIR EDWIN LANDSEER.

A London letter recalls two more anecdotes of Landseer, the artist's early visits to Scotland, he stopped at a village and took a great deal of notice of the dogs, jotting down rapid sketches of them on a bit of paper. Next day, resuming his journey, he stopped a stopping place where he was buying a dog, and he was told that the dog was the property of a man who was a great deal of notice of the dogs, jotting down rapid sketches of them on a bit of paper. Next day, resuming his journey, he stopped a stopping place where he was buying a dog, and he was told that the dog was the property of a man who was a great deal of notice of the dogs, jotting down rapid sketches of them on a bit of paper.

STONEWALL JACKSON.

When the war broke out, Jackson was a professor in a military college, his acquaintance to the last had more than the scholar than the soldier, he used to ride at the head of his troops with head bent down, in a shabby uniform, on an ill-groomed horse, and with stirrups absurdly short. His death appears to us to have been the real turning-point of the war. The subsequent Confederate advances, which were but only due to the unwholesome impetus which their army, still derived from his victory at Chancellorsville, and the irremediable character of his loss was seen at Gettysburg, where Lee shattered and demoralised his army by direct attacks upon the Federal lines, which Jackson had been alive, would probably never have occurred. For that he did assume the responsibility of disobeying an order of Lee's which he thought unjust, is a fact which stands on record; as Antietam, for instance, he refused compliance with Lee's order to attack the Federal right, after he had ascertained by a reconnaissance that the enemy were too numerous for him, and strongly opposed to permit of the attack being made, with a reasonable hope of success—Cassell's Illustrated History of England.

A TOWEL FOR EACH.

It is not uncommon in country houses; for all the members of the family to use the same towel for wiping their hands and faces. I am often surprised to see how this practice prevails, even among people of considerable cultivation. Recently, the towel in a well-to-do family of good rank, was washed together at the ends which hang over a roller. This seems very generous and nice when it is clean, but not so after it has been used two or three days, used morning, noon, and night by half-a-dozen persons. We may be able to endure a great deal of our dirt when we are obliged to do so, but it is not a moral, delicate taste which arises from using a towel soiled by other persons. Each human body gives forth its own peculiar excretions from every pore of the skin, waste matter, more or less filthy, so it is not merely the impurity derived from external sources that we wash and wipe away when we use our own towel. It is also the odour of the body, that one's billows, the perfume of one's tobacco—ugh! Give me a clean towel, please! And please give every child its own towel and its own comb as soon as it is old enough to use them; and now I want to add—please, O fellow citizens! give every human being a chance to wash the whole body, privately, whenever one wishes to do so, in a comfortable bath-room, with plenty of hot and cold water, and a good bath tub, and all the clean towels required.

SAN FRANCISCO AS IT IS.

As is well known, California, universally, as it seems to us, and now, to very many of her people, refused a paper currency, and has to this day, used only gold and silver. That they are now learning this, a paper note, when duly honoured is no more convenient for use than coin, is not acknowledged by the bankers and merchants in the demand for a national gold bank, which has recently been established, and whose issues, in lieu of coin, are eagerly sought for by the people. The smallest piece of money, after the early portion of using gold dust ceased, was an old nine-pence (twelve and a half cents), which was always called a "bit." A quarter of a dollar was a "two-bit piece," a half dollar a "four-bit piece," etc. Now that this coin has departed, and the nomenclature as well as practice, is gone, a great difficulty is experienced, if you buy anything for "that," and hand a quarter of a dollar in payment, they return ten cents in change, which would be, as they say, "taking the long bit," the "short bit" being a dime. A person who lends a dime for a "bit" is stamped as a mean man, and is avoided, so, what is demanded is, that you should try to pay about equally low and high. No nickel has been used, and very few silver half-dimes. The leading bankers, I think, are now satisfied that it would have been better to have adopted our common currency; and if this State had done so, the difference between gold and greenbacks would have been long ago made up by the general confidence in our paper. I discover two reasons which determined the course, first, of the people, had always been accustomed to gold coin, never having used paper currency, it was difficult matter to effect a change; and secondly, it must be said, although I regret it, that there was a large and very influential minority who were unable to the South during the late war, and across to the "war issue" of currency. The Bank of California is the leading financial institution, yielding an immense influence, and presided over by Mills and Balaban so ably, that it has the confidence of the entire financial world.—From "The Atlantic," the Pacific," by J. B. Baker.
